

New Strike Threats Are Reported

Airplane Factories Face Trouble on Both Coasts; Coal Shortage Is Eased

Call Authorized
Bendix C. I. O. Workers Ratify Repeat of July Walkout

(By The Associated Press)
Threats of strikes in war plane factories on both coasts faced the nation today, while the fear of a soft coal shortage eased with the assurance that some 44,000 miners will return to the "captive" pits in Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Kentucky Monday.

A walkout in the aircraft plants would affect more than 38,000 workers.

On the west coast, AFL machinists at the San Diego plant of the Consolidated Aircraft Corporation said they had halted wage negotiations and were prepared to enforce demands with a walkout. George C. Castleman, vice president of the International Association of Machinists said the National Defense Mediation Board had been requested to consider the dispute, after Consolidated refused to give a general 10-cent hourly wage increase to 23,300 employees. The present minimum rate for beginners is 55 cents an hour, with skilled men receiving more.

In the east, trouble brewed at the plants of the Curtiss-Wright Corporation in Buffalo, N. Y., and Air Associates, Inc., at Bendix, N. J.

Strike Is Voted
At the Curtiss-Wright plant a union of employees known as "The Aircraft," not affiliated with national organizations, voted to strike unless the National Labor Relations Board grants an employee representation election in 10 days.

The union claims a majority of the firm's 15,000 workers. Its president, Leo Kriegerbaum, said a decision in a mass meeting last night was almost unanimous on the strike issue.

The CIO workers at Air Associates in Bendix authorized a second strike call. They were out 21 days in July. Joel Miller, representing the local union, said 300 workers authorized the union to call a strike. The union gained a labor board election last July and struck later, contending workers were fired for union activity. Miller said only that the new threat was the result of a series of "incidents" at the plant.

The 44,000 striking coal miners agreed to go back to work pending settlement of the dispute over the union shop issue. The agreement provides that work will be resumed for 30 days after which either side may give three days' notice of termination. The so-called "captive" mines are owned by steel companies which take their entire output.

Meanwhile there was a fear in shipping circles that disputes between seamen and owners of vessels over the question of war bonuses might develop into a general strike.

The AFL union wants a bonus of $60 monthly for trips to the West Indies, which they want considered a war zone. Bonuses of $1 a day are paid for trips to Canadian waters.

The Maritime Commission requisitioned three truck vessels of the Alcoa Steamship Company—The Alcoa Banner, the Alcoa Trader and the Alcoa Scout—to hasten supplies to Caribbean ports. The ships were expected to clear New York harbor today and tomorrow with crews paid the same scale as paid by Alcoa.

Temperatures Drop
Following the mid-summer temperatures of earlier in the week the official city hall thermometer on Friday afternoon dropped to a high of 69 degrees, while the lowest point recorded last night was 45 degrees. In other sections of the city much lower temperatures were reported during the night.

Jewels Are Stolen

Quiet Thief Raids Park Avenue Apartment, Takes $50,000

New York, Sept. 20 (AP)—Jewels valued at $50,000, and $50 in cash were stolen last night from the 16-floor apartment of Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Holmes on Park avenue.

Holmes, a former vice president of the Chase Securities Corporation, said he and his wife were at home all night. The theft, on an upper floor of the Duplex Apartment, was made so quietly they didn't hear a sound. The thief apparently entered from the roof of an adjoining building.

Among the articles stolen, Mrs. Holmes said, were a pearl necklace, a diamond and emerald clasp, a diamond and emerald bracelet and an emerald ring.

14 Men to Handle Tax Bill Spending

Washington, Sept. 20 (AP)—Legislative leaders said today that a new 14-man committee authorized to investigate non-defense expenditures may write a "super-budget" designed to make substantial reductions in present outlays for domestic activities.

The committee, authorized in a senate amendment to the record $3,553,400,000 revenue bill, will be set up as soon as President Roosevelt signs the tax measure. It will consist of the secretary of the treasury, the budget director and a dozen members of the senate and house taxing and appropriating committees. Its duty will be to make a thorough inquiry in an effort to curtail non-defense spending. It would have a $10,000 operating fund.

Bids on Crossing Work to Be Asked After November 1

City and Central Officials Hold Conference on Detailed Plans and Specifications

Mayor Conrad J. Heiselman and members of the city engineering staff were in consultation yesterday with the officials of the New York Central Railroad Co., in connection with the preparation of the detailed plans and specifications for the elimination of the Broadway crossing.

The Public Service Commission on September 9 gave its final approval to the plan prepared by the railroad company's engineering staff has been busy for several months on the detailed plans and specifications for the much needed crossing elimination and these are expected to be finished not later than November 1.

The detailed plans and specifications will then be turned over to the Public Service Commission to the New York State Department of Public Works, which will then advertise the job for bid and award the contract for the work.

Estimated at $1,000,000
The total cost of the elimination including cost of real estate, the construction of the elimination, the relocation of the city's water and sewer lines, the relocation of the street lighting system, police call system, fire alarm system and the construction of new streets is estimated at $1,000,000, all of which will be paid for by the State of New York, out of the grade crossing funds which have been set aside for the Broadway crossing. No part of the cost will be borne by the city.

The plan as approved by the commission provides for Broadway to be depressed for a distance of about 700 feet, with a concrete pavement 54 feet wide with sidewalk areas of 11 feet at the level of the crossing. The new level of Broadway will be connected with a steel bridge at the present level over the depression. Thomas street will be regraded to meet the proposed new level of Broadway. Buildings on both sides of Broadway will be affected.

To Construct New Streets
New streets will be constructed north of Broadway connecting Cornell and Thomas streets, and connecting Thomas street and Railroad avenue. That section of Thomas street running between the 12th and 13th shore hotels and parallel with the Broadway Railroad tracks will be widened and reconstructed.

New streets will be constructed on the south side of Broadway connecting Greenkill avenue and Cedar street, and from Pine Grove avenue to the West Shore freight station.

Eight Airmen Die In Plane Crashes; Four in Maneuvers

Toll Resulting From Huge War Games in South Is 16; Dargue Lauds Safety Record

(By The Associated Press)
Eight airmen were killed in army plane crashes yesterday, including four connected with the huge Louisiana war maneuvers which raised its violent death toll to 16.

Second Lieut. R. H. Keith of Menomonee, Wis., and Leland A. Viar, of Dunlap, Kas., died in a collision while dogfighting over a heavily wooded area near Natchitoches, La.

First Lieut. Walter H. Boyd of Long Beach, Calif., and Corp. Artie M. Howard of Salsersville, Ky., members of the 12th Observation Squadron which also participated in the war games, burned to death at Marshall, Tex. Their plane overshot the air field, crashed into a tree and burned.

A crash of a training plane soon after a takeoff from the Parkville, Va. airport killed Second Lieut. Carlisle C. Hook of Newark, N. J., and Angus J. McDonald, Los Angeles.

Two others died at Fort Worth, Tex., while practicing aerobatics. They were J. C. Foster, 22-year-old civilian instructor, and flying Cadet Ronald S. Bierer, 21, Brooklyn. A wing came off the plane as it went into a plunge.

Twelve others died earlier in the war games involving the Second and Third Armies. One person was killed in a plane crash, eight in highway accidents, two by drowning and one by suicide.

Major General H. A. Dargue, praised the safety tactics of pilots of the 800 planes in the Louisiana maneuvers.

Dargue said the planes were flown "many thousands of hours" and declared their pilots "remarkable record" has been made as a result of safety precautions in protecting life and property, and is an excellent example of discipline and control.

Opposing commanders and pilots Dargue said, carried out faithfully the precautions carefully throughout and agreed upon before the maneuvers started last Monday.

Among "don'ts" listed for airmen in the war games were: head on flights, formation flying close to other formations, individual dog fights, engagements at altitudes as low as 500 or 1,000 feet, and bad weather flying for the highest speed planes.

Messler's Case Put Off 2 Weeks; Dabney Loses Leg

Stradford Messler, 31, of Goshen, operator of the milk truck in collision Friday with the car in which Dorris Dabney, a negro, of 47 South Pine street, was riding was represented in police court today by Attorney Andrew J. Cook, and the hearing on the three charges lodged against Messler were adjourned for two weeks.

The adjournment was taken to await the outcome of Dabney's injuries. Following the crash between the two machines Friday afternoon Dabney was rushed to the Kingston Hospital, where it was found necessary to amputate his left leg.

At the hospital this noon it was reported that Dabney was apparently in fair condition.

The charges lodged against Messler by the police are third degree assault, failure to observe a full stop sign, and inadequate brakes.

When the case was called this morning before Judge Matthew V. Cahill in police court, Messler was represented by Attorney Cook, while Attorney Louis Bruhn appeared for The People.

Bail, which had been fixed at $500 yesterday, was continued today.

Two Policemen, Clerk Kill Bank Bandit; Second Dies in Crash

Ellwood City, Pa., Sept. 20 (AP)—Ignoring the barking guns of three bandits fleeing after a $3,500 bank robbery, police officers and a drug store clerk shot one of them to death while another was injured fatally in a crash of the "getaway car" after a spectacular chase through this western Pennsylvania town.

The slain bandit's two companions also were wounded but at the Kingston Hospital today said that crash injuries and not gun wounds caused the second suspect's death today.

The pursuit was touched off yesterday by the third holdup at the First National Bank of Harrisville, 30 miles northeast of here.

Entering the bank five minutes before closing time, the men told Assistant Cashier W. E. McBride "this is a stickup. One false move and we'll blow out your brains."

They emptied the cash drawer and sped away.

Police Chief Ernest Hartman, armed with a sub-machine gun, halted them as they approached Ellwood City. Dabney a hail of bullets, the chief blazed away. He hit two of the men before running out of ammunition.

Navy Says More Than Dozen Anglo Men-o-War in U. S.

Vessels in Port Include Warspite, Illustrious, Formidable; All Are Getting Repairs

Washington, Sept. 20 (AP)—The navy department, modifying a previous policy of strict secrecy, acknowledged today that more than a dozen British warships are in United States ports.

Twelve were listed by name, including the 35,000-ton battleship Warspite at Bremerton, Wash. Still others—names undisclosed—were reported to be anchored in U. S. waters, under terms of the lease-lend act which gives them access to repairs and supplies at American shipyards.

Secretary Knox, in announcing the change of policy concerning publicity late yesterday, said the step had been taken after weeks of consultation with British officials. A "reasonable degree" of information will be released, he said, but "no information will be disclosed which might be of value to the enemy."

Apparently the move was planned to give Americans and Britons some idea of the magnitude of naval assistance which the royal navy is receiving under the lease-lend law. President Roosevelt retorted.

Nazis May Have Taken Part of Vital Soviet City

London Doubts Germans Have Done as Well in Ukraine as They Claim; Harriman Says Agreement Reached in London on Help for Russians

(By The Associated Press)
Although clearly in a desperate position in the Ukraine, the Red army reported today it still was fighting heavily at Kiev and that the Germans had lost 10 Divisions—up to 150,000 men—in assaulting the city where they claim the Swastika flag already floats.

The German high command said that the citadel of Kiev was stormed Friday, that the Russian officers fled and the whole Red garrison surrendered without further resistance.

This left some doubt whether the Germans had occupied the old Ukrainian capital or had merely smashed into part of it. The Soviet mid-day communique made no acknowledgements except to place the heaviest fighting directly at Kiev.

A high source in London expressed doubt that the Nazis had done as well as they claimed in the Ukraine.

Russian sources in the British capital admitted that Kiev, Leningrad, and even Moscow itself eventually might be lost, but said the Soviet union would not even think of defeat unless the Hitler legions were able to drive to the easternmost depths of Siberia.

The Germans claimed not only to have entered Kiev, but to have effected a junction which surrounded four Soviet armies east of that great city, and to be harrying the Russians by land and air in a pell-mell rush toward the industrial Donbas basin and its chief city, Kharkov.

Acknowledging that "the reports of German successes probably contain some truth," the London source said it was strongly favored that an encirclement move could encompass so wide an area or that the Russian forces were being chopped up piecemeal as the Germans insisted.

Unplanned Withdrawal

The Russians pointed out anew that their traditional strategy was one of unplanned withdrawal and held that loss of Kiev would be no insuperable tragedy.

With the 13th week of the German-Russian invasion ending today, the front shapes up roughly as follows:

In the northwest, the Germans are hammering at Leningrad with increased pressure but the Russians show no signs of diminishing their fierce defense.

In the center, the Russians are carrying out counterattacks directed at regaining Smolensk but the Germans attach little importance to these assaults.

In the southwest, the Germans claim to have entered Kiev and captured the railway junction city of Poltava, 80 miles west of Kharkov, chief city of the Donets basin.

The Germans also declared they had trapped four Russian armies, estimated in Berlin as at least 200,000 men and perhaps many more, east of Kiev and said they were annihilating them.

The German high command also reported capture of the Islands of Vormsi and Muhu at the mouth of the Gulf of Riga, preparing the way for an assault on the strongly-held Russian Island of Oesel. Muhu and Oesel are linked by a causeway.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

By The Associated Press

Delayed Wedding

Fort Wayne, Ind.—Glenn Kessler and Lillian Kirkpatrick planned to be married two weeks ago. The bride caught influenza and the ceremony was postponed. Then the groom got appendicitis and it was postponed again.

Yesterday the Rev. Leo Johnston of the West Side Church of the Nazarene finally performed the wedding in St. Joseph's Hospital where Kessler still was in bed.

Unkind Thief

Philadelphia—A thief has the Philadelphia Orchestra Association all confused.

A briefcase stolen from the parked automobile of an orchestra committee head contained a list of patrons who wanted concert tickets.

Offering a reward for return of the list brought no action. Now the association is pleading for persons whose names were on the list to make new reservations.

Ho Hum!

Devon, Kas.—Mrs. Frank Byerley, teacher at Centerville school, spends all her time crocheting but there aren't any complaints.

There aren't any pupils, either. The board hired Mrs. Byerley last year but nobody showed up when she opened the schoolhouse this fall. School laws require her to report every day for three months. Then if there are no pupils the school will be closed.

Some Fawn

Fort Huachuca, Ariz.—The First Battalion, 368th Infantry didn't need a bugler to wake up. Just before time for reveille a deer wandered into camp and nuzzled a man at the end of a long row of sleeping soldiers. He screamed. The startled animal leaped right on down the row, the din increasing progressively. The day's work got off to an early start.

Unlawfully Weeded

Aurora, Ill.—The Federal Government wants Aurora to pay $1.925 to Uncle Sam for its 1939 hay fever alleviation campaign.

J. Albert Woll, federal district attorney in Chicago, alleged the city had diverted WFA labor unlawfully to clear weeds from private property near a park.

Mayor Andrew J. Carter said the city would investigate the claim.

The Bigger They Are...

Des Moines, Ia.—Neil Sommer, 21, started to drive into a driveway and bumped into Beverly Hollingsworth, 2½.

She was unhurt.

Sommer fainted and was unconscious when Patrolman Orrin Kettells arrived and helped revive him.

BIRTH CERTIFICATE

The United States Department of Commerce, Census Bureau announces that approximately sixty million people are without birth certificates because they were born before the establishment of a reliable birth registration system. A serious bottleneck has thus been created, due to legal requirement for proof of date and place of birth for all who now work or seek to work in defense industries and for all who apply for old age assistance and for other purposes.

A person needing a birth certificate should inquire first of the Registrar of Vital Statistics in the state where he was born as to whether or not his birth was properly registered. If not he should put together every scrap of evidence he can assemble—Bible records, church records, hospital records, insurance records or other facts—and submit them to the State Registrar in an attempt to get a delayed birth certificate.

If persons seeking defense employment find they cannot get delayed certificates they should present all of this evidence to employers. The War and Navy Departments have urged employers to use the rule of reason.

Only those who have immediate need for work or old age assistance purposes are requested to apply now. Others who may wish to obtain certificates just for future use are urged to take their time so as not to compete with people whose jobs are at stake or who are in want. The Census Bureau is being flooded with requests at the rate of over 600,000 a year for acceptable proof of birth from census records.

Warning is also issued against the possibility of rackets, some of which have already sprung up. All forms and instructions for obtaining facts about births are available in State Bureaus of Vital Statistics or at the Census Bureau in Washington, D. C., without payment to any person or corporation.

SCHOOL MOOD

"It's Blue Monday for 1,250,000, as the city schools reopen," said a New York news story. It proceeded to tell how a million and a quarter youngsters, more than one-seventh of the city's population, "had the blues." Newcomers, it was recognized, seemed to have a thrill, but the rest of the juvenile army was represented as "returning glumly to the pursuit of knowledge."

Now this is a rather familiar pattern, or maybe we should say "patter." But does it make sense? Most of us grown-ups, when we recall our own youthful experience in such matters, and also when we really observe the boys and girls tripping off to school in the fall, don't see the same picture at all. Not that the kids are visably eager for knowledge. But what we see is a young army mobilizing and pouring into the school playgrounds and classrooms with shouts and smiles of recognition and an evident feeling, though few of them would admit it, that "it's good to be back again."

There are some laggards and grouches, to be sure. But the general spirit is one of reunion and adventure and an apparent realization—which they don't philosophize about—that everything is good in its own time, and a return to school in the fall is as natural and pleasant as was the departure in the early summer.

JAPANESE TREASURE

A current story from Japan tells of a romantic treasure hunt by which some statesmen hope to solve their country's problems. A vast quantity of gold, supposed to have been buried about the middle of the last century, is to provide modern Japan with the means to carry on and achieve her statesmen's ambitions.

Romance is always welcome. Everybody likes to read about money and speculate on what could be done with buried treasure, if it existed and if it could be found and used. But if Japanese leaders are really basing hopes on any such quest, they are in worse state than we've supposed.

Buddha's teachings are well known in Japan, and one of the most vital of them is that "in yourselves deliverance must be found." If the Japanese nation would ditch its war lords, make peace with the nations it threatens to fight, and settle down to a cultivation of its own natural powers and resources, it could be prosperous, happy and honored. And so could Germany.

SHIP CHRISTENINGS

With all these new ships being launched nowadays, there must be a lot of fancy bottles broken over steel bows and much good champagne dribbling rather uselessly down to Davy Jones's locker.

It was not always so. Before the year 1690 they used to christen a ship by drinking its health from a big silver cup. The tradition is that it cost a lot of money, because the cup had to be filled so many times. So they started the present practice, which costs just one bottle. And that bottle often is carefully fastened with a lanyard (a small rope) so that the bottle will swing and crack properly against the bow, avoiding social embarrassment and extra expense.

A pretty good argument could be made now for going back to the original but using good and inexpensive American cider instead of champagne. But that would be regarded as sacrilege. It's hard to change any naval custom that has lasted for two centuries and a half.

All these alarms and instructions about gasoline are confusing, but the matter's rather simple. Just keep some gas in the tank and don't burn it needlessly.

It's a dumb world, but not a cowardly one. Millions are braver than the causes they fight for.

Hitler, who is anti-tobacco, wants his enemies to smoke. The latter would like to see him burn.

Yes, everything nowadays is confusion; yet if you look long enough, you can see a kind of dumb order in it.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

By James W. Barton, M.D.

(Registered in accordance with the Copyright Act)
A COLD OR LACK OF SLEEP

It often happens that when a member of the family, perhaps the husband and father, is taken ill, the wife and mother has to do much extra physical work, aside from undergoing anxiety regarding the patient. This extra physical work and extra tax on the mind due to anxiety so weakens the wife and mother that she may become the victim of the same or another ailment from which she may not recover, while the original patient gets well.

None of us really appreciate the damage done to the heart, nerves, the entire body in fact, by hard physical work accompanied by continuous anxiety.

Drs. E. Simonson and N. Enzer in the Journal of Industrial Hygiene, report their findings in studying the role of the central nervous system in muscular fatigue. Subjects were placed before a light in front of which is a rotating shutter causing flickers of light. When the subject is rested and alert, he can readily detect these flickers, whereas if he is tired, the flickers are not so noticeable and the light seems fused together, that is a continuous light instead of flickers.

Nineteen individuals were tested fifty-three times as to the way the flickers kept apart or were fused together. At the end of the day, their ability to detect the flickers was lessened.

This experiment thus showed that when we are tired, our eyes and brain do not detect, see the little changes that occur, and the light seems continuous instead of in the flickers really present.

The lesson then is that when we are tired from the day's work, the eye and brain should be rested awhile before we plunge into work requiring the eye and brain if we are to get good results from our work. Another important point these tests established was that lack of sleep or a cold appeared to act upon the eye and brain the same as fatigue. This means that a cold or lack of sleep has the same effect upon the nervous system as actual work in causing fatigue and that the work we do or the decisions we make when we have a cold or are not getting our sleep, are not as good or as clear as when we are completely rested.

If we cannot get more rest at night, we should try to get some rest during the day.

Neurasthenia
Do you feel tired all the time? Have no ambition? You may be suffering from neurasthenia, which means mental and physical tiredness. Send today for Dr. Barton's new leaflet entitled "Neurasthenia." All you have to do to obtain it is to send a three-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Barton, Post Office Box 150, Times Square Station, New York, N. Y., and mention name of leaflet.

Washington Daybook

By Jack Stinnett

(First of two articles on the "petroleum products shortage.")
WASHINGTON—Not since this war started has Washington had a bigger chafe than that over the hubblebub which has accompanied the so-called shortage of gasoline, fuel oil and other petroleum products in 17 eastern seaboard states.

Back in the spring, Secretary of Interior Harold I. Ickes, who also is national defense petroleum coordinator, smelled out a "potential" shortage in the eastern states' petroleum products, and what followed was a governmental comic opera interlude, like "Pussy Wants a Corner," with everybody off base at once.

There were threats of gasolineless Sundays, gasoline ration cards, frigid apartments and houses because of a lack of heating oil, and idle industries. Filling stations were closed from 7 p. m. to 7 a. m. and finally their supplies of motor fuel were cut 10 per cent. All of which had the effect of increasing the consumption of gasoline.

Everybody Takes a Hand
The railroads came forward with the assertion that they had "20,000 idle tank cars." President Roosevelt cleared the right-of-way for pipelines which, in six to twelve months, might eliminate the shortage, only to have the defense priorities agency step up and veto the largest of these on the ground that between 480,000 and 750,000 tons of steel (nobody quite agreed on what amount would be necessary) could not be spared from more vital defense needs.

Into this mess, primarily at the instigation of the American Automobile association, stepped a senate investigating committee which, after a couple of weeks of hearing everybody who had any authority to talk on the subject, concluded that "there is no shortage of petroleum products in the eastern seaboard states," but protected itself by intimating that there might some day, because nobody knows what the future holds.

In the interim Price Administrator Leon Henderson slapped a ceiling on gasoline prices; railroads reduced rates on gasoline and crude nearer to tanker and pipeline levels; bootlegging of gasoline after hours was reported; the oil companies, nearly three months later, pledged to use all available tanks cars; complaints came in to Deputy Petroleum Coordinator Ralph K. Davies that orders were not being filled because oil companies couldn't get tank cars, and the Republicans asked the removal of Ickes and Davies as heads of the defense petroleum set-up.

Not too Funny, at That
To any observer who felt that this confusion might not be such a laughing matter after all, at least two official statements in the investigation must have been significant.

One came from Leon Henderson in his testimony before Sen. Francis Maloney's senate committee. Henderson said:

"Transportation has always been the key to the oil problem from a competitive standpoint. A major factor (in the growth of this industry) has been their ownership of cheap privately operated transportation facilities."

The other was a little-noticed paragraph buried in the report of the Maloney committee.

"The committee members have not attempted to explore the changes of unworthy purposes behind the announced oil-shortage. We have not felt that it was part of our immediate responsibility to attempt to find out whether or not the 'shortage' question arose as the result of a desire to construct a large pipeline, or other pipelines, or whether behind the scene there was some connection with pending anti-trust suits (against the major oil companies) or whether the price of petroleum products was involved."

"Members have heard these and other charges—and while we do not dismiss them entirely, and while they might be considered later, the committee has felt that its purposes was to ascertain whether or not there was a petroleum shortage, and if there was, how it might be corrected."

Roosevelt Has Letter From Defense Mediation Board
Seriously Affecting Workers
(By DAVID LAWRENCE)

Washington, Sept. 20.—President Roosevelt has before him a letter from the national defense mediation board which in effect amends the Wagner labor relations law, and at the same time deprives American workers of their freedom to work.

The President has given no indication of what he is going to do about the letter. This far he simply has made it public together with an opinion by the general counsel of the national labor relations board. But if Mr. Roosevelt does nothing about it, the American people may as well be advised that without benefit of Congress, an important statute has been amended.

The Wagner law states in specific terms that no employer may discriminate as between his employees on account of union membership or non-membership. It makes one important exception and that is in permitting an employer and a union voluntarily to enter into an agreement for a closed shop. The closed shop practice is well understood in industrial history. It means that when the union and the employer agree to exclude any workers except union members, such a closed shop agreement is valid though, to be sure, it has never been really tested in the Supreme Court of the United States.

But now the defense mediation board has extended the closed shop to the closed shop exception and in a letter which seems to relegate the national labor relations board to a relatively secondary position as spokesman on the Wagner act, says that it is all right for an employer to discriminate as between employees hereafter and make those that are members of a union pay dues whilst letting persons who are not members remain free from dues payment or membership in a union.

This variation is significant because it nullifies the original purpose of Congress in permitting the closed shop, to be an exception to the Wagner act provision about non-discrimination. The basic idea has always been that a closed shop since it applies to all the workers in a given plant eliminates internal strife. To accomplish that objective, Congress agreed to the exception. Now the defense mediation board says it's all right for an employer to fire any workers who don't pay dues and this isn't in any way an interference with the workers' rights.

The language of the statute is plain. It says: "Nothing in this act... shall preclude an employer from making an agreement with a labor organization... To require as a condition of employment membership there-

"AT CENTURY'S TURN"

By H. L. VAN DEUSEN

While members of the Kingston fire department were trying out three smoke masks at the Central Fire Station on Thursday, February 19, 1921, they were called for a fire at the old Hoffman brewery on Hone street. Owing to the fact that the firemen had to fight many fires where smoke was heavy, the fire board that year had decided to order the masks for training.

The smoke masks were similar to the gas masks used by the soldiers in the first World War.

When the masks were delivered at the Central Fire Station that day in February, twenty years ago, a room in the basement was filled with smoke and then the firemen donning the masks entered the smoke-filled room, remaining within for six minutes.

They emerged six minutes later without having had a whiff of smoke enter the masks.

I also recall that the Retailers Branch of the Chamber of Commerce enjoyed the annual banquet at the Hotel Al King, well known by one soloist led the diners in singing popular songs and also sang several songs, while Alderman Paul Zucca, who was not particularly interested in politics that year, led the orchestra.

The retailers that year had induced John McGlynn, a well known after dinner speaker and humorist, to come to Kingston to act as toastmaster. Mr. McGlynn said he felt at home that evening as he had been greeted by two former Danbury, Conn., boys who knew when he lived in that city.

The two former Danburyites were Paul Zucca and Charles H. Lovin, chairman of the banquet committee.

The banquet speakers that night included A. W. Hoffman of The Freeman, Col. R. H. Gillett of Columbia county, and Judge William D. Cunningham of Ellenville.

It was in 1921 that the Knights of the Grail was reorganized at the Trinity Methodist Church on Wednesday evening, February 23, of that year, held the first annual banquet in the church parlor.

Fred L. Van Deusen was toastmaster and the speakers of the evening were the Rev. P. C. Weyant, pastor of the church, John Baisten, Lester Finley, George E. Lowe, Edward Hills, Clarence Rowland, John Mackey, Fred Voigt, Harry Giles and Randolph Weyant.

Before the defense program began, the United States firearms industry in 1939 produced 622,812 rifles, 486,429 shotguns, and 90,067 pistols and revolvers, according to Census reports. Despite world conditions, this was a sizable decline from 1937 production totals when 913,056 rifles, 552,239 shotguns, and 139,293 pistols and revolvers were produced.

The farm Census found Montana had 1,318 farms of 5,000 acres or more in 1940; Wyoming, 1,070; and New Mexico, 1,352 in the same classification.

More than a million new dairy milk cans are required annually to supply the American market, according to factory production figures reported to the Census. In 1939, 1,094,020 such cans were made.

Registration Is Vital

Kingston sector and post wardens are passing out questionnaire cards to householders in this city, so that all may register for defense of their homes and be prepared if war comes to the U. S. A. This is vital to all. Registration ends October 1.

FOR THE LOVE OF PAM

By VIVIAN GREY

Chapter 12
Boner By Bruce

A friend driving out West noticed this highway sign in a small community:

"This is God's country. Don't drive through it like Hell."

A good admonition.

Reckless driving causes the loss of more lives than the death toll in the war in Europe, except the Russian invasion.

A western congressman in Washington on legal business, talking over legal fees, told a story of a lawyer and client in a damage action.

Injured Client—"Why, you are taking four-fifths of my damages. Attorney—Furnish the skill, the eloquence and the necessary legal learning for your case."

Client—"Yes, but I furnish the case itself."

Attorney—"Bosh! Anybody could fall down a coal hole."

Drive safely . . . The under-taker will gladly wait.

The word "thief" was on the blackboard, but Dick could not spell it.

Teacher—"Surely you know what that spells. Now, I put my hand into your pocket and took out a penny, what should I be?"

Dick—"A conjurer."

A Sultan at odds with his harem.

Thought of a way he could scare.

He caught him a mouse, set it loose in the house, thus starting the first harem-scare.

The cost of the car a man buys is not determined by the amount of money he owns, but the kind of a wife he married.

Tourist—So this is the place where Morgan Gilgrip, the great banker, was raised. I don't suppose by any chance you know the man who gave him the first dollar he ever earned.

Native—None. He chiseled me out of it—the first one I ever earned.

To the credit of most of the gals very few of them get arrested for driving speeding automobiles or driving while tight.

Hubby—The bank has returned the check.

Wife—Isn't that splendid! What can we buy with it this time?

Every sunrise brings with it surprising changes.

Don't let these changes upset your apple cart.

You are bigger than anything that can happen to you.

Strengthen your Poise, your Faith, your Courage.

A woman never really makes a fool of a man. She just directs the performance.

The street railway had a vacancy in its stenographic department and, as all progressive firms now-days have a personnel department where applicants must give everything from the color of their grandmothers' eyes to the indebtedness of their third cousin on their father's side, one young lady made out her application in the following manner:

Calf: 14 inches.

Thigh: 26 inches.

Neck: Positively.

Egg Peddler (to wife)—Sufferin' snakes, Florabel, you sold the wrong eggs to that last woman.

Wife—How so?

Peddler—You sold her some of the lot which we dated "September 10" when it is only September 1 now.

Those who repeat everything they hear do so because they haven't anywhere to keep it.

Red-faced Customer—I want to buy some rouge and face powder.

Pert Clerk—For your wife, sir, or to match your coat lapel?

GARDINER

Mr. and Mrs. Tracy Munson of Kingston were guests of Mrs. Munson's aunt, Mrs. Stella S. Woolsey on Saturday afternoon.

Mrs. Lawson Upright is ill with asthma.

An addition is being built on the rear of the A. D. McKinstry home.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Kenneth Freer are entertaining Mr. and Mrs. Fred Franks of Arena.

Miss Helen Jayne of Great Neck, L. I. and Miss Elizabeth Jaynes of Red Hook were week-end guests at the Jayne home.

A community picnic was held by Gardiner people and their friends at Tillson Lake, Wednesday. The day was ideal and the beautiful lake with its background of mountains presented a wonderful sight. The leaves were slightly colored with autumn shades. A lunch of variety and abundance was eaten at noon provided by covered dishes brought by each family. Accordion music, fancy dancing, swimming and roller skating afforded amusement. Those attending were Mr. and Mrs. George Dusenberre, Horace Dusenberre and Mrs. Floyd Wells as Modena guests and the Rev. and Mrs. B. H. Thaden and daughter, Sharon, Mrs. Anna O'Neil, Mrs. Christine Tschirky, Mrs. Anna Rosekrans, Mrs. Myron Wells, Mrs. John McIntosh, Mrs. Mary Smith, Mrs. Gussie Miller, Mrs. Albert Beattie, Mrs. Charles Wells, Mrs. Luther Dusenberre, Mrs. Stella Woolsey, Mrs. Charles Vandemark, Mrs. Millie Lyons, Mr. and Mrs. David Wiese, Mrs. Glyn Dickinson, Mrs. Frank Dusenberre, Mrs. Esther Ward, the Misses Mary and Jennie Elting, Mrs. Abram Deyo, Mrs. Mary Clinton, Mrs. Joseph Deyo, Mrs. George Hudson, Mrs. Frank Majestic and daughter, Irene, Miss Frances Bartow, Miss Bernice Stockenbury, Mrs. Lewis Jayne, Miss Ruth McIntosh of Gardiner.

The P. A. L. recreation club enjoyed a picnic at Lake Mohonk Sunday afternoon. Each member invited a friend which added to the pleasure. The regular meeting was held at the McIntosh home Monday evening.

The Democrat caucus for enrolled voters will be held in the Tuthilltown hall on Friday evening, September 26.

The growth of radio communication for commercial purposes is indicated by the Bureau figures which show the annual production of commercial receiving sets grew from 10,182 units in 1937 to 30,474 units in 1939.

But suddenly she was cold to all of it. Something was missing from the picture.

She walked back to me kitchen. Melita was about to give her morning feed to the cats. It had been a rite of the Queller household for generations to put food out for homeless cats every morning. Sea folk have a strange feeling for cats, and Pam liked to keep on with the habit.

"Let me!" she said quickly as she took the pans from Melita's hands.

Pam was in a better mood. Suddenly she was aware of commotion. The cats scattered. Blaze trotted into the scene, her tongue hanging out of one side of her mouth, laughter as plain in her Irish eyes as ever in any colleen's.

"Why, Blaze! Were you chasing my cats?" Pam asked in amusement, for the cats had nearly finished.

Blaze walked up the steps and nosed her hand. She was allowed to walk in through the house with Pam. Blaze disturbed nothing. Her investigation of the charming old house with its treasures brought from the four corners of the earth went no further than a polite and interesting sniffing. She trotted up the stairs and made a quiet round of the rooms, satisfying herself that it was a very proper house in which all was well, and then returned to the study where Pam was at her work table.

Pam's attention was engaged when a voice spoke to her.

"Hello, Pam." She looked up to see Jerry, and swiftly, against her wish, all of the anger of the night before washed from her.

"Hard Words"

"Oh, Jerry!" she cried, noting, as she spoke, the shamed flush that rose to the roots of his dark hair.

"Pam, forgive me for rushing away in temper last night," he begged. "You were right, I was wrong. I've been walking around the block trying to get up courage enough to do this. Blaze was bold enough to walk right in and make her apologies. If you knew how hard this is—"

"I suppose it would be hard for you, Jerry," Pam broke in coolly, having gotten possession of herself again. "You've had so little practice in such things."

"What do you mean, Pam?" Jerry was obviously startled at her mood.

"Oh, Jerry, why did you come here when you know you don't mean anything you say or do? Why?"

"But I do, Pam! I don't understand you at all."

Pam was silent for a moment, looking at him with eyes darkened by pain and anger.

"Please go, Jerry," she said finally. "I have work to do, and I can't do it with you here."

Jerry moved toward her, put his hands on her shoulders.

"Pam," he said, "there's nothing you have to do. Let me do things for you. Let me take all of the musts out of your life. Let me be the answer to everything for you. Give up all of this—he waved a hand toward her work table—"and let's play. Let me show you how much fun there really can be in living."

Pam freed herself from his grasp.

"Jerry, please!" she begged. "If you want to be kind to me, if you want me to like you at all, please go. Go now. This is my life—these fish scales, these dyes, these fish scales. I have orders that must get out and deliver. Don't take what little I have from me. Don't!"

"But I want to give you everything, Pam, believe me, I wouldn't take one little thing from your life. I want to give to it! But since you ask it, I'll go now and give you time for the things you think are so important to you. But I'll be back. I'll be back, Pam."

"Don't you dare!" Pam said, suddenly inflamed. "Don't you dare come back!"

Jerry, who had been on the point of leaving, whirled and faced her in astonishment.

"What do you mean?" he demanded.

"Exactly what I said," she answered quietly. "I have no use for people who don't give me some reason to respect them. Who haven't some reason for living and taking space. What are you, Jerry Winthrop? Just another useless, easy-living man?"

Jerry's face was white with anger under his tan. He looked for an instant as if he might strike Pam. Then his hands relaxed. A slow smile lighted his face. Blaze who had been sitting in obvious nervousness, looking from one to the other, wagged her tail slowly, thoughtfully, a trace dubiously.

"Pam," Jerry said with unexpected gentleness, "you're magnificent in this mood. I like a fighter! This settles it. You're my girl!" But whatever else he would have said died a-borning, for Pam's furious voice broke in: "Fighter? You like a fighter? Then why don't you show a little fight yourself? You'll live your whole life out without a single thing that you can point to as an accomplishment. You'll never do a useful thing!"

"Are you trying to goad me?" Jerry was trying to keep calm. He didn't want to quarrel with Pam. But her words were assailing him again:

"Goad you? I? Why should I be interested enough to try to goad you to anything? What have you that I'd want? Why, you haven't even honor! You—you—"

Registration Is Vital

Kingston sector and post wardens are passing out questionnaire cards to householders in this city, so that all may register for defense of their homes and be prepared if war comes to the U. S. A. This is vital to all. Registration ends October 1.

Within a generation, the radio industry in the United States has grown from commercial infancy to a 275 million dollar adult. This figure is the annual production value of radios at the factory, according to the Census Bureau.

Yup. At least four. See illustration.

The Negro's contribution to American music comes in for dramatized recognition Sunday when WEAF at 12:30 will present "Freedom for the People" with Paul Robeson, Joshua White, W. C. Handy, the DePauw Chorus and Noble Sissle's orchestra.

Handy will tell why he gave us the "Strut Your Stuff" and "Swing Low, Sweet Chariot" blues worked out by the orchestra and vocalists. This should make top-flight listening.

FASHIONS AND HOUSEHOLD HINTS FOR WOMEN

Suit Yourself

By HELEN FORRIST HALL
AP Fashion Editor

A back drooping jacket, soft skirt and sheer blouse in "treasure chest" gold and red fox muffs. Sally Milgrim design.

After previews of the new fashions, we conclude that the woman who has to watch pennies would do well to buy a suit and wear it through the winter.

Suits have a new note of elegance. That note starts with the fabric, which should be the best available, chosen to hold its shape over a long period.

With the suggestions that those who want to make one suit do choose a monotone, flattering in line and color, and spend a little more money to have it fitted, we'll proceed to tricks revealed in the openings.

Sally Milgrim looked to the Arabs for her "tent pole" silhouette, especially good for tall women. Straight and slimming, it is softened by folds and drapes. Fabrics show the influence of reed mat weaving, and the wool dress with jacket or coat of the same weave in heavier weight is stressed. Colors borrowed from the Near East emphasize blues—midnight, a turquoise-peacock tone, and pale aqua tints. Gay reds, rose tones and greens, running from vivid to subtle casts, appeared. But the "treasure chest gold," a warm toast color, took the most votes at the opening.

Sophie Gimbel perfects the trim, short-jacket suit with unusual blouse. Her new "plastic seaming" consists of curved, pointed or diagonal seams aimed to mould the bust, waist and hips. The jacket of a persimmon red tweed suit in her collection acquires its ruffled waist by a series of vertical gores across the back, modeling the waistline. She twists the fabric of suit and blouse together to make a hat.

Fira Benenson thinks of a letter S for her silhouette. It seems straight and narrow, but actually bosoms are curved, waistlines are concave and she remembers the forgotten dainties with traceries of back movement. A believer in prettiness, she chooses fabulously beautiful fabrics, often with an old-fashioned look. To make your suit warmer for winter, the tippet—like your grandmother's fur one, but made inexpensively of cotton velveteen—is picturesque.

COFFEE TABLES can be handy and handsome too. Here is chic in following a curve. The round top of the glass and wrought-iron table fits the furniture behind it. To carry the curve out, you could place a round or oblong picture above the walnut loveseat to blend with the wood or the pastel upholstery.

Satins Rustle, Slim Skirts Bustle As Grandmother's Styles Return

By HELEN FORRIST HALL

Stiff Silk Puff Back

Fabrics from grandmother's day are woven into the fashion picture this season. Silks of extravagant texture are made into voluminous skirts. There's the rustle of stiff faille taffetas, of slipper satins and taffeta-back velvets. Moires, their waver markings fluid or in studied design, appear in every collection, as often in the day-length suit or the frock which edges into the dinner scene.

HATTIE CARNEGIE, in a gala showing, presented Persian and python-printed wool jerseys in a series of dimid models. From all-black stiff silks in checks or plaids appeared in grandmother's silhouettes — playing up peplums and puffs. Thick looking woollens, used as evening coats, were vividly embroidered in jewels or beads or bold metal thread. Handknits, often with paillette touches, appeared for day and evening.

Miss Carnegie's silhouettes included Persian lamb banded town suits with long flaring jackets, and the 1914 Irene Castle evening gown.

HENRI BENDEL'S originals, which stressed soft shoulders with bolstered width below, were flung backward in silhouette. Slim in front, skirts became flared in the rear or had back peplums or flounces.

A fine black broadcloth day suit had a slim skirt. The jacket was waistlength in front and fell to below the hips in a back peplum.

The outstanding Bendel evening silhouette was slender with trumpet flounces or released back seaming. Gowns were done in rich satins or taffetas, often accented with wide velvet ribbons — as in one gown with a velvet bow at the back of the knees, beneath which the skirt burst into fulness.

Dry Cleaning Takes Three Weeks In London—If There's No Blitz

(Last of three articles on the difficulties of war time house-keeping.)

By MARGARET BUNELLE
Wife of Robert E. Bunelle, Chief of London Associated Press Bureau

By Cable to AP Feature Service London—Women in England are streamlining their household establishments because it's hard to get servants and too difficult and too expensive to do things on a lavish scale any more.

Thousands have closed down their large houses and have taken small compact places where they can do their own housework or manage with a part-time maid. Where I live, in South Kensington, there are blocks and blocks of stately old homes deserted by their owners. The few modern apartment houses in this district have waiting lists, and rents for these places are exorbitant.

A friend who recently moved out of a lovely big Georgian house with a beautiful garden into an efficient flat explained that "it's just too expensive and too much trouble to keep up a big place. Anyway, my family is scattered. One daughter is driving an ambulance, the other is a nurse, and my two sons are in the army. My husband spends most of his time out of London on war work."

Women Do Men's Work
The servant problem has become more trying because men's jobs have been opened to women. Women now are bus conductors, truck drivers, railway porters, "milk men" and "postmen" as well as working in the various women's services.

Servants who had been accustomed to working around the clock for four or five dollars a week and keep find the hours, pay and more independent position of these new jobs more attractive.

There are many other household problems. Plumbers and electricians have been drafted, and you have to wait weeks to get the smallest job done. Laundries collect and deliver only once a week. A small family laundry which used to cost about $2 a week now costs $4, and the work is inferior. Many women are doing their own things themselves.

Speed In Slow Motion
Dry cleaning takes three weeks, and you have to do your own carrying. Dresses average $1.50 apiece. If you pay 50 cents extra you can get "express service," by which your clothes are finished in 10 days—if they aren't blitzed.

Every housekeeper makes a daily contribution to the war effort by saving waste paper, tin-foil, tin cans, bones and food scraps, which have to be kept in separate containers for the garbage collector.

Lavish entertaining is out because party food and cocktail ingredients are scarce and prices way up. Cigarettes are hard to find, too, and many people make a point of rolling their own. Daytime entertaining has become more popular because of the blackout and transportation difficulties, and this summer many people who have gardens have entertained out doors.

Sardine Blend For Canapes
Sardines mixed with chopped hard-cooked eggs, sweet pickles and green pepper make a snappy covering for canapes, served plain or toasted. Butter the canapes lightly before covering with the sardine blend. This helps prevent soggy. Use sardines in three times the quantity of the other ingredients combined.

These Women!

Women in the wartime kaleidoscope:

Fannie Hurst thinks women should be the army's cooks, truck-drivers and chambermaids.

Miss Hurst, an ardent feminist as well as one of America's ace authors, has no patience with a feminine defense role confined to such passive activities as knitting socks.

"The world is faced with a new kind of war and we need a new technique," she told me. "Women will have to take a more active part in the activities of war and defense in order to free manpower for other tasks. Women could serve on trains and planes; they could be army cooks, truck-drivers and chambermaids. This would introduce a good disciplinary element into camp life and have a salutary effect on it as well."

Miss Hurst has just completed one book—a three-year job dealing with the American scene up to the present war—and will soon begin her autobiography.

Merle Oberon is devoting the proceeds of her fall radio broadcasts to war activities and relief. Her friends say she is dividing her earnings on the air between the USO and the RAE.

Between broadcasts the British actress has been in New York shopping for fall clothes. Except for the costumes she ordered from some of 57th street's ritziest shops, she used a time and energy saving system—selected clothes from department store newspaper ads and ordered by telephone.

As the wife of Alexander Korda, Merle has one of Hollywood's most sparkling jewel collections which travels with her in a made-to-order jewel case the size of a small suitcase. Among the jewels it holds is a diamond and emerald necklace said to be the same bangle Napoleon III gave to Mme. Hausman. Another is a set of three diamond roses, Korda's gift.

According to results of a recent questionnaire submitted to service men, the American soldier's dream girl is five feet six inches tall, weighs 118 pounds, has curves, wears frilly feminine clothes, uses cosmetics, dances and has an interest in music. She may smoke and drink sparingly—preferably beer.

Silver plaques were awarded to distinguished designers at the formal opening of Neiman-Marcus' lavish shop at Dallas, Tex. Those receiving the annual award were Anthony Blotts, Carmel Snow, Eleanor Le Maire and Max Meyer. Among the gowns shown at a fashion show the same day was the harem-skirted silk jersey illustrated below. Its detachable burnoose is caught by a hand-wrought Chinese gold clip. Nettie Rosenstein, a Neiman-Marcus awardee, designed it.

Beauty For Pictures Starring You

Always Make Up Correctly Before Your Photo Is Taken

By BETTE CLARKE
AP Feature Service Writer

You might as well be picture-perfect if you are going to pose for that candid camera fan in your family this winter.

Makeup can do the tricks for you it does for movie people. This year you can get in one box all the cosmetics you need for posing. Or you can get movie makeup piece by piece as you need it.

1. Here are some hints for home-made picture stars:
2. Wash your face with soap and water or cold cream it.
3. Next apply a foundation base (some say powder base) in light dots on forehead, cheeks, nose and chin. Smooth this very evenly.
4. Shadow features which are not your finest (the ones that stand out more than you like). Or highlight recesses that are too pronounced.
5. Blend away any sharp edges where you have used shadow or highlight to minimize an imperfection.
6. Fat powder on your face plentifully and brush excess away from corners of nostrils, mouth and eyes.
7. Put lipstick on lightly.
8. You may omit cheek rouge entirely for black and white pictures.
9. Use a hairbrush to smooth hair—particularly about your face.
10. If you use an eyebrow pencil, be sure starting and stopping points of the eyebrow are softened.
11. Get your cameraman interested in helping you watch for ways to improve your makeup.

Size 10 Suit and Size 12 Sweater—It's Tough to Fit an 8-Year-Old

(AP Feature Service)

Is your child large for his age? Is he long-legged and skinny? Or short and fat? Uncle Sam is going to do something about him.

Let us say he is 8 years old. He may wear a size 10 suit, purchased at Smith Bros., while you may find it necessary to buy a size 12 sweater at the Jones store. His underwear may be of a size completely unrelated to his age or to the other garments he wears.

Apparently, there is something wrong with stating size by age. The clothes problem for children of 4 to 17 has been chaotic to the point that the Works Project Administration put up money for a nation-wide survey. Measurements of nearly 150,000 children were taken. Each child was weighed and measured at 35 anatomical angles.

The Bureau of Home Economics, working with the National Consumer-Retailer Council, has evolved a system of sizes gauged by height-girth measurement. Eventually a mother may be able to phone a store, name her child's height and girth and receive the clothes to fit him. The measurements determine the rest of the garment's proportions. It works like an artist's slide-rule—with mathematical precision.

Mothers and children would save time, energy and money in this way, the Bureau asserts. So would the store and the manufacturer. There would be better fitting clothes, making your child appear to advantage. Instead of carrying eight different sizes for the 8-year-old child as one store does, there would be only one size—to fit John or Mary. Then a store could offer each a wider variety of styles.

There would be fewer garments returned to the stores—waste on returns alone has been estimated as high as $10,000,000 a year. A goodly share of that expense comes right back to the family purse.

Fabrics would be saved—this is one of the government's interests. From pattern cutting to cloth cutting, this streamlining of sizes would be economical—and still give better fit. You'd save again, because wasteful and expensive alterations should be practically eliminated.

The American Standards Association has been set up to develop such projects—working with consumer and manufacturing groups, but when all is said and done, it's up to parents to put it to work.

Stocks Running Low
Manufacturers of wedding gowns are reported in a mad scramble for white silks. Even self-stripes, brocades, and novelty weaves are being stocked by houses that previously would never cut into anything except classic white satin.

A heavy pure silk faille, made by only one mill in the country and supposed to last as long as the bride's diamond ring, is being bought in pale pastels because of the shortage of white.

Man Against Beast
See that all the attic windows are well screened to keep out squirrels. They like to forage. Also make sure that the basement will not make an inviting spot for field mice. Some housewives keep on basement screen doors until late in the season.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Sept. 20 (AP)—Stocks started a somewhat staid course in today's market but the majority failed to pick up any real recovery tail winds.

Indecisive shifts ruled dealings from the start. While scattered plus signs appeared here and there is the brief session progressed, these were offset by a wide assortment of small fractional declines. Most leaders pointed moderately downward at the close.

Stocks lacking rallying animation included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, General Motors, Great Northern, Anaconda, Western Union, U. S. Rubber, Sears Roebuck, J. I. Case, Douglas Aircraft, Sperry, Consolidated Aircraft, Allied Chemical, Johns-Manville, Union Carbide, Texas Corp., Savage Arms and Warner Bros.

Ahead now and then were American Can, Caterpillar Tractor, International Harvester, American Smelting, Pennsylvania, General Electric and Eastman Kodak.

The business picture provided nothing particularly inspiring market-wise, it was suggested. Steels were more or less neglected despite next week's mill output was expected to hold at a fairly high level.

Inclined to slip in the curb were Lake Shore, Gulf Oil, Air-Craft, Phoenix Securities, N. J. Zinc, Republic Aviation and Pittsburgh Plate Glass, Pantepec and Glen Alden Coal were up occasionally.

Firemen Injured, Truck Is Damaged In Rush to Fire

Three New Paltz firemen were injured and the smaller of the village's fire trucks was damaged to the extent of perhaps $500 in an accident at the Ehler dairy farm on the Springtown road about 7:45 o'clock Friday.

Brought to the Kingston Hospital for treatment were Harry Kaiser, former chief of the New Paltz department, Edward Simon and Howard Zimmerman.

Kaiser sustained a broken hip bone, two fractured ribs and cuts and bruises and Simon has five broken ribs and was badly shaken. Both were reported in fair condition this morning but will probably remain in the hospital for some time. Zimmerman was discharged after treatment for bruises and lacerations.

The Sanford pumper, driven by Earl Slater, answered a call to a brush and hay fire on the Ehler farm, opposite the Jesse Deyo farm, which is in New Paltz fire district. It had burned off the main road and into the narrow driveway, when it went out of control as it ran over a culvert or rise in the roadway. The truck ran along the roadway, grazing several trees and finally striking a large tree, damaging the left front corner of the machine.

The injured men were riding on the side of the truck when they were brushed off and injured. Several of the firemen dropped off and escaped injury.

The New Paltz fire district carries liability insurance. The damaged truck is not the large new truck which attracted so much attention at the recent firemen's parade in Woodstock, but the smaller truck which always is sent out on first calls from outside the village.

First Reformed Men's Club Holds First Fall Meeting

At the First Reformed Church Friday evening members of the Men's Club held their first meeting of the fall term. During the session many important discussions were heard on the events for the coming season.

The Rev. Herbert C. Greenland, a new member of the organization, voiced his opinion that a men's Bible class be formed. The executive committee was then asked to act upon this suggestion and to contact all absentees. A social hour followed.

Enlists in Army

Clarence E. Thomas, 26, of 23 Crown street, on Friday enlisted at the recruiting office, Army Building, 39 Whitehall street in New York, for three years' service with the regular army. Mr. Thomas is a son of Arthur E. Thomas. He has been assigned to air corps, unassigned, Jefferson Barracks, Mo. Mr. Thomas was a student of Kingston High School, and has enlisted in the army for a career.

Holy Name to Meet

Sunday evening the Ulster County Division of the Holy Name Society will meet at Ellenville. This is expected to be one of the largest meetings ever held in this county. All the branches throughout Ulster have made known their intention of being present. St. Mary's Society will leave by bus at 6:30 p. m. The meeting is scheduled to start at 8 o'clock. St. Mary's members, who have not made reservation, are advised to do so at once by calling St. Mary's rectory.

Month of August Shows

City Arrests Total 238

During the month of August there were 238 arrests made in Kingston, according to Chief of Police Charles Phinney's monthly report filed with the Board of Police Commissioners Friday evening.

The report showed that there had been 58 arrests for violations of the vehicle and traffic law, and 163 arrests for violations of the traffic code of the city. There were also 18 arrests on charges of disorderly conduct, and 31 arrests on charges of public intoxication.

One arrest was made on a charge of operating an auto while intoxicated, and the other arrests were for scattered offenses.

Jailed on Charge

Joe Sanko, 46, citizen of Poland, was arrested at Ellenville on a public intoxication charge Friday and was brought to the county jail to await a hearing before Police Justice Herman Cohen.

La Follette Says Policies

Of Roosevelt and Willkie

Will Be Beaten in 1942

Washington, Sept. 20 (AP)—Senator LaFollette (Prog.-Wis.), served notice today that the foreign policies espoused by President Roosevelt and Wendell L. Willkie would face a vigorous attack in the 1942 congressional elections.

Charging that the President had broken his pledges to the American people by "ordering the navy into a shooting war," the Wisconsin senator called upon all those "who are opposed to entering this war to mobilize for the political battles which lie just ahead."

Re-elected last year with administration backing after he had endorsed the President's bid for a third term, LaFollette has been a frequent critic of administration foreign policy moves although a strong supporter of its domestic program.

Despite Mr. Roosevelt's press conference rebuke this week of those who would inject party politics into the present critical world situation, LaFollette told reporters there appeared to be a "collaboration to purge the Democratic and Republican parties of all those who do not agree with the administration's foreign policies."

He said Willkie, the 1940 Re-capitals had air-raid alarms during the night.

The Germans said British bombers attempted to attack Berlin but were kept off by anti-aircraft guns. One raiding plane was reported shot down.

The Russians said one German plane succeeded in bombing Moscow but no damage was caused. The Nazis have acknowledged raids on various cities in north Germany and admitted that "explosive and incendiary bombs dropped in residential quarters resulted in a number of dead and wounded among the civilian population."

In London, the Authoritative Press Association said the Royal Air Force did not attack Berlin during the night, leaving the possibility that the Russian Air Force made the aerial thrust.

The British Air Ministry said the RAF bombed Stettin, Germany's biggest Baltic port, about 100 miles northeast of Berlin, and set many large fires among docks, warehouses and railway yards, while coastal command planes bombed Nantes, in German-occupied France.

W. Averell Harriman, head of the United States mission to Russia, disclosed in London that a British-American agreement already had been reached on the fundamentals of immediate material aid for the Soviets.

The head of the British mission, Lord Beaverbrook, already is in Moscow, Harriman said, and the American delegation expects to go soon.

In the Far East, the Japanese claimed and the Chinese acknowledged successes for an invasion force in Hunan province, one of China's richest rice-producing districts.

The Japanese said they captured several strategic points on Tungting Lake, occupied Sintang and cut the Canton-Hankow railway 25 miles south of Sintang in a major offensive paving the way for encirclement of 20,000 Chinese troops.

Chungking dispatches said they were uncertain whether the Japanese force of 30,000 men was aiming merely at seizure of the rice harvest or at Changsha, the provincial capital which they tried vainly to take in one of the war's biggest battles in 1939.

At home, the Japanese observed "aviation day" with planes circling over Tokyo and dropping explosives in the bay. The government announced it would assume control of meat distribution a month hence and increased the subsidy for oil importers and refiners.

The British granted clearance for a Japanese ship to take nearly 200 Japanese nationals home from Malaya, India and Ceylon.

In the little kingdom of Thailand, strategically close to Singapore and nervous about the courtship of Japan, the assembly rejected a bill to ban foreigners of all nationalities from entry, but admitted the possibility of fifth column activity and took steps to curtail automobile purchases which "agents of a certain country" have been making recently in Thailand.

publican nominee, seemed ready to join in this, if reports were true that he intended to campaign only for party members who endorsed the expanding program to aid nations fighting Germany.

The President made it clear he objected to linking party politics with foreign policy when he rebuked a reporter last Tuesday for inquiring if Democrats were going to be encouraged to vote for Republican candidates backing his international course, as against Democrats who did not.

LaFollette insisted, however, that the question of active involvement of this country in the war was going to be such an important issue in next year's congressional campaigns as to force a political realignment.

"President Roosevelt and Mr. Willkie both promised to the voters of this country that they would keep us out of war," he said. He declared that the President, evidently with Willkie's approval, had accomplished "the breach of this promise by short circuiting the constitutional power of Congress to declare war" when he told the navy to shoot on sight at Axis warcraft in "defensive waters."

Mexico Tells Axis Nationals They Must Leave Country

10 Men Set Fire To Nazi Garage in Paris, Walk Away

Act of Defiance Follows Stern German Edict Against Sabotage in France

Vichy, Unoccupied France, Sept. 20 (AP)—Defying stern Nazi repressive edicts, 10 men set fire last night to a garage in Paris requisitioned by the German army and calmly walked away from the blazing building.

A passer-by saw them leave but none was captured.

The fire—the latest in a series of acts of sabotage and violence against the Germans—came less than 18 hours after two communists died before a Nazi firing squad for anti-German demonstrations.

Thus the Germans have executed 23 persons since the outbreak during the summer of what is known in Vichy as the Paris "terror." Thirteen were described as "hostages," while the others were condemned by German military courts.

Paris and the entire surrounding Seine department are under a strict, three-day curfew imposed by the Germans to protect their soldiers. It became effective last night.

(The British radio said the German-controlled Paris radio had appealed to Marshal Petain last night to order strong measures against Frenchmen not collaborating with Germany. BBC said the Paris radio demanded immediate action against all "without regard to rank or position.")

The Germans claimed to have broken up with 24 hours three separate bands of "gangsters" while the French were reported planning to strengthen their police in Paris.

(A German newspaper in Brussels, occupied Belgium, said three alleged communists were executed at Lille, in occupied France, for sabotage and that 12 Belgians had been condemned to death in Brussels for espionage and other anti-German activity.)

(The Civil Supreme Court at the Hague, occupied Netherlands, imposed sentences up to 2 years Thursday on 22 Amsterdam citizens accused of instigating strikes last February and March.)

Status of Soviet

Siege Depends on

Resistance Power

On the actual map of Russia, the main threat is to the vital industries of the Donets and Don basins, to the Caucasus, even to the supply route from Persia, over which the westerners hope to send the material which Russia needs to replace the sinews she has lost.

It is not fair, however, to assume at this time that the Germans will be able to continue the sweep eastward. If the present action follows the pattern of the past 90 days and the Russians continue the same superb resistance, there are today many ferocious battles raging far behind the Germans' furthestmost points of penetration. Indeed, the Russians aver the struggle for Kiev itself goes on; that the Germans have lost ten divisions there.

One cannot even accept as a fact the German contention that the four Red armies surrounding east of Kiev are immobilized; they may still have the punch for a raging counter-attack that would menace, perhaps splinter, the German salient.

Winter, too, is very near: for Germans, yet another winter in which their soldiers will die far away from homes to which they are bound by all the ties of Germanic tradition. It is very significant that the German high command issued its first casualty figures only when it had a cascade of success reports to cover them up. It also is noteworthy that the high command itself acknowledged, inferentially, that tidings of far greater casualties had become current in the fatherland. Actually, whether they were believed or not, the figures of some 400,000 dead, wounded and missing German soldiers must have shocked many the German household.

Government Is Considering

Measure Providing

Penalties for 5th

Column Acts

Mexico City, Sept. 20 (AP)—The Mexican government, considering adoption of a bill providing severe penalties for fifth-column activity, was said by authorized circles today to be notifying many German, Italian and other European tourists they would have to leave Mexico.

Times of departure depend upon the expiration dates of six-months visiting permits. Most of these already have expired, it was reported, and visas will not be extended.

(Four bills intended to tighten restrictions against totalitarian agencies in Argentina were announced by the Argentine congressional committee investigating subversive activity. There was a fresh anti-German street demonstration in Buenos Aires.)

Authorized circles said several hundred Germans and Italians were affected by the Mexican action, interpreted as a precaution against the possible presence of agitators. Old established residents and political refugees, the newspaper Excelsior said, will not be forced to leave.

Pressure Is Reported

The official pressure was reported soon after an announcement that President Manuel Avila Camacho had asked congress to adopt immediately a bill providing prison sentences ranging from six to 15 years for espionage and from three to six years for spreading propaganda or inciting the public to favor any foreign power.

Mexico and the United States both are seeking to strengthen "the democratic solidarity of the Americas in defense of the ideas of justice and liberty," the chief executive declared last night in answering a congratulatory message sent by President Roosevelt on the 131st anniversary of Mexican independence Tuesday.

Argentina's "Dis" committee made public the text of four bills to be presented to the chamber of deputies, probably Monday or Tuesday to prohibit totalitarian propaganda, regulate or prohibit anti-democratic news agencies, tighten laws governing "diplomatic valises" and prevent political use of Axis-controlled investments in Argentina.

A street group in Buenos Aires—in one of a series of demonstrations which the German press said could have "a reaction on diplomatic relations"—shouted denunciations of Germany last night and tossed about leaflets attacking the Reich's ambassador, Edmund von Therman. Nine persons were arrested.

In Rio de Janeiro, Brazilian police closed offices of an organization known as "the juvenile crusade for a good press," charging that it had been distributing anti-democratic and anti-Jewish propaganda.

Close National Loop Race May Continue to Finish; Pressure Still on St. Louis

Redbirds Must Take One More Than Brooklyn; Terry Moore and Rookie Help

(By The Associated Press)
The baseball season is getting shorter by the minute, and perhaps a solution to the struggle in the National League is getting nearer by the same reckoning—but it isn't visible to the naked eye.

While the Brooklyn Dodgers were in Philadelphia yesterday frittering away an off day, the St. Louis Cardinals were busy blistering the Chicago Cubs, 3-1, and making the race in the senior circuit just about as close as it can get.

Today the standings are:

For the first time in months the two rivals have exactly the same number of games left to play—and the pressure that has been and still is on the Cardinals becomes readily apparent.

The fortunes of the contenders may fluctuate between now and the close of the campaign a week from tomorrow, but if during that time the Dodgers win exactly as many games as the Cards, Brooklyn will get the pennant.

St. Louis has to win one game more than the Dodgers down the home stretch because of the tie the Cards played with the New York Giants last week.

This assignment is made all the more difficult because Brooklyn has seven games with the last-place Phillies and two with the seventh-place Boston Braves while the Cardinals must tackle the Chicago Cubs five times and Pittsburgh four.

The Cardinals have shown no sign of cracking. The return of Terry Moore to centerfield and the addition of some rookie strength has given them new power for the final lap.

Yesterday, in the only major league game scheduled, they looked as good as ever in bowling over the Cubs, who only a couple of weeks ago knocked St. Louis out of first place.

Moore hit two doubles and Stan Musial, a 20-year-old outfielder just promoted by Farmer Branch Rickey, collected a double, two singles and a walk. This pair sparked a run across in the first inning and two more in the fifth.

With this backing, poker-faced Harry Gumbert pitched seven-hit ball to obtain his 11th victory of the season and fifth straight.

The Cards are so close to the Dodgers, as a result, that they can take over first place today by two percentage points if Brooklyn should split its doubleheader with the Phillies.

They're liable to stay that close right down to the wire.

Roy Weatherly On Carpet as Indians Plan Salary Slice

Stubborn Holdout of '40 May Decide to Quit Sport; Suspended Twice This Year

ROY WEATHERLY

Cleveland, Sept. 20 (AP)—The folding Cleveland Indians may be the subject of much surgery before next season, but the most certain project of all is an impending major operation on the $13,000 salary of outfielder Roy Weatherly.

Presiding at the knife will be Dr. Alva Bradley, better known as the Tribe's president. From the way the doctor talked today the slash will be so deep that he may be in danger of losing his patient.

"Weatherly has been much overpaid, and he's a different priced ball player next year," Bradley declared in firm tones.

The mite outfielder was one of the speediest fly chasers in the majors—until this season. He reported well above his former playing weight of 175 pounds and his fielding and batting skidded sadly. Even in the August heat he was detected wearing a rubber shirt in an effort to take off weight.

Weatherly's present poundage is something of a mystery, because he is under suspension for the second time this season for failing to hustle. However, somebody who should know what he's talking about squinted at the scales recently and though he saw them hit 192 pounds.

If the pay cut is too severe, Weatherly might decide not to play at all. He was a determined holdout of the spring of 1940, when he insisted on a two-year contract he didn't get. Little Roy generally is regarded as the Indians' choicest winter trading bit—providing, of course, that the rival David Harmons offer more in return than two slightly used bat boys.

Dodgers Confident Before Opening Final Eastern Swing With Phillies; Wyatt, Higbe Set

Philadelphia, Sept. 20 (AP)—Proudly boasting "you can't beat a club like ours," Manager Leo Durocher of the cocky and confident Dodgers nominated his two ace hurlers for a doubleheader against the Phillies today in the hope of boosting Brooklyn's lead over the Cardinals in their torrid National League pennant fight.

"This is our opportunity to put St. Louis out of the race and we aren't going to miff it," declared Leo in picking 20-game winners Whitlow Wyatt and Kirby Higbe to oppose the last-place but always dangerous Phils in the start of a five-game series which might determine the flag chase.

Back from what Durocher described as "the greatest western trip in 16 years," the Flatbush outfit spent yesterday in idleness while its first-place margin was trimmed to a mere half game by the Card triumph over Chicago.

Had Big Thrill
"They came from behind to win games out west that gave me the greatest thrill I ever had in my life," said Leo. "They can't beat us from now on. We beat the best pitchers and the best clubs when the chips were down. Sure, we're going to win the pennant."

He shrugged off the $150 fine levied on him by League Presxy Ford Frick for his rumpus with Umpire George Magerkurth at Pittsburgh over a balk called against Pitcher Hugh Casey which led to a Pirate win. Insisting it wasn't a balk, Durocher added "we should have won the game and of course I got sore. Any red-blooded guy would do the same thing. But that's baseball—tomorrow is another day."

Right now his big worry is scalping the Phillies. Wyatt, who has been rested since his thrilling 1 to 0 three-hit shutout over the Cards last week, is slated to pitch the first game, starting at noon (E.S.T.). He is likely to be opposed by the veteran Cy Blanton, who has won six and lost 12.

Higbe, a former Phil who was sold to the Dodgers for $100,000 last winter, and Southpaw Frank Horst are to hook up in the afterpiece. Horst pitched the best game of his career the last time the Dodgers were in Shibe Park, giving up only four hits and winning 4 to 1.

Phils May Give Trouble
The Phils, although beaten by the Dodgers 13 of 15 games this year, have the reputation of kicking over the traces at the wrong time as the Cincinnati Reds and the New York Giants discovered in 1926 and 1934. In those years the Phils helped the Cardinals win the pennant by beating the Reds and Giants late in September.

Interest has risen to high pitch over the series that includes a doubleheader on Sunday and a single game Monday. Hundreds of Brooklyn fans have made arrangements to come for the weekend, many of them flying over. The Phils, whose largest crowd of the season was some 12,000 on Decoration Day, are hopeful to pack Shibe Park all three days.

Census figures indicate that American factories in the last four years have turned out more than a million electric kitchen ranges of 2½ K. W. and over.

Eleven million motorists put new fan belts in their cars every year according to replacement sales reported to the Census Bureau.

There were two scares during the siege but real trouble developed in neither case. Ken Germann, junior left halfback and one of the squad's top offensive threats, came up with a bruised side and was forced to the sidelines for a couple of days, then to light work for two days more. But he ended the week in improved shape and should be ready for full-time duty next week.

Snively Pulls Muscle
Don Snively, veteran center, threw a scare into the coaching staff in a mid-week scrimmage when he left the field with an injured leg. X-Ray pictures, however, showed only a slight muscle pull and "Engineer" Snively will head into the coming week in good condition, although perhaps working easy for a few days.

Otherwise, only the normal early-season aches and pains have bothered the squad and Dr. Frank Nobletti, the medical supervisor and himself a former varsity guard, reports everything under control.

The work, of necessity, will begin to taper off during the coming week, although several more scrimmages are on tap. College classes open at mid-week, with the result that the morning drills, which have been conducted thus far in hot-weather shorts and sleeveless shirts costumes, will be discontinued.

Indications of the early scrimmages point to the expectation that the varsity will be a stronger offensive unit than last season when Columbia won five games, tied two and lost only to Cornell and Syracuse, the latter on a

Kingston sector and post wardens are passing out questionnaire cards to householders in this city, so that all may register for defense of their homes and be prepared if war comes to the U. S. A. This is vital to all. Registration ends October 1.

While the actual playing season has already been completed officials of the club are making plans for the 1942 season. As announced Friday the Brooklyn Dodgers of the National League are anxious to form a working agreement with the local club and if this should be arranged, baseball fans in this section will see quite a few new faces here in 1942.

It has been reported that the Recreation officials are quite satisfied with the present infield set of Ralph Coleman, Eddie Sabo, Chuck Yanni and Buddy Van Herper. This is an infield no other semi-pro club could better. However, there's a long time between now and next spring and even this department may go through a little overhauling.

In the outfield Jimmy Ashdown and Tommy Maines are expected to be retained. Both played good ball all summer and will in all probability, be considered as starting material for 1942. Another hard-hitting fly-chaser from this section will be the player Kingstons has in mind.

The battery department is in for a wholesale change. "Whitey" Kowalczyk is due to report to the Dodgers next spring. So a new receiver must be obtained. The pitching staff also is in for a number of changes. In all likelihood three or four hurlers will make the starting berths. Another moundsman will be selected as a relief thrower.

Bill Sahlin and "Whitey" Tulacz are the new hurlers in mind for the Reds. Both would be welcome additions to the club. As to the rest of the 1941 fingers no word has been given. It is a safe bet, however, that a majority of them will not be around.

In the outfield Jimmy Ashdown and Tommy Maines are expected to be retained. Both played good ball all summer and will in all probability, be considered as starting material for 1942. Another hard-hitting fly-chaser from this section will be the player Kingstons has in mind.

The battery department is in for a wholesale change. "Whitey" Kowalczyk is due to report to the Dodgers next spring. So a new receiver must be obtained. The pitching staff also is in for a number of changes. In all likelihood three or four hurlers will make the starting berths. Another moundsman will be selected as a relief thrower.

Bill Sahlin and "Whitey" Tulacz are the new hurlers in mind for the Reds. Both would be welcome additions to the club. As to the rest of the 1941 fingers no word has been given. It is a safe bet, however, that a majority of them will not be around.

Recreation officials are quite satisfied with the present infield set of Ralph Coleman, Eddie Sabo, Chuck Yanni and Buddy Van Herper. This is an infield no other semi-pro club could better. However, there's a long time between now and next spring and even this department may go through a little overhauling.

In the outfield Jimmy Ashdown and Tommy Maines are expected to be retained. Both played good ball all summer and will in all probability, be considered as starting material for 1942. Another hard-hitting fly-chaser from this section will be the player Kingstons has in mind.

History May Repeat Itself When Louis and Nova Meet

Comparison Between Fight Next Week and First Dempsey-Tunney Go; Lou Like Gene

Pompton Lakes, N. J., Sept. 20—For those folks who believe that history does have a habit of repeating itself, there are several significant comparisons to be made between the first Jack Dempsey-Gene Tunney meeting in Philadelphia 15 years ago, and the Joe Louis-Lou Nova scuffle listed for presentation in New York's Polo Grounds the evening of Monday, September 29.

The Dempsey of 1936 was regarded as just as invincible as is the Louis of 1941. Practically no one, aside from himself and his own immediate cohorts, conceded Tunney anything better than a faint outside chance against the devastating champion.

Gene was not particularly popular with the public. His boxing style, while effective, was not exactly spectacular. Despite his cleverness, Tunney was not graceful, and at times even looked awkward and cumbersome. But he had concentrated on, and perfected, the sort of tactics that were to prove Dempsey's downfall. To a large extent, Nova is another Tunney. Lou hasn't what could quite be called magnetic box office appeal, and the fistic public has yet to display undue excitement over him. But, like Tunney, the Californian has developed a boxing style that has produced winning results. And it is just the sort of style that is likely to cause Louis no end of embarrassment.

Tunney regarded himself as something of a "man of destiny." Long before there was even a suggestion of him meeting Dempsey, Gene had sold himself on the idea that he was fated to whip Jack.

Nova has nursed the same conviction concerning himself and Louis. In Lou's mind there isn't the slightest doubt as to the outcome of the impending brawl. To him, the result is already "in."

And, completing the general comparison, Nova, like Tunney, is a strong-willed individual who practically is his own boss. Billy Gibson actually was only "front man" for Tunney, who did all his own business, Gibson merely going through the formality of signing the papers. And while pleasant Ray Carlson is officially recognized as Nova's manager, Lou really is his own entire board of directors. He not only manages himself, but manages his manager as well.

Sammy Snead Takes Lead Of One-Stroke in Tourney

Hershey Golfer Flashes Form to Top Dozen Champs for Henry Hurst Award

Philadelphia, Sept. 20 (AP)—Hill-billy Sammy Snead's regained his long lost putting touch and he'd better hold on to it if he expects to keep ahead of the siege guns stalking his trail in the $7,500 Henry Hurst invitational gold inaugural.

Unmindful of a broken middle finger on his left hand, the hot Springs, Va., sharpshooter put on a dazzling performance to shave six strokes off par for a record-breaking 64 on the initial 18 holes at Torresdale-Frankford Country Club.

But the par busting 32-32 exhibition gave him only a one-stroke lead over the field of 86 at the start of today's second 18 holes of play after which the list will be cut to 48 low scorers for Sunday's concluding 36-hole battle.

In a tailspin since early August after winning the Canadian and Rochester Opens, Slamm'n Sam flashed old-time form yesterday to top an even dozen American champions, present and past. He used only 26 puts, getting down eight times in one and playing one hole without taking the putter out of his bag, blasting into the cup after trapping a tee shot on the 14th.

Tert Johnson on Heels
Hot on his heels came Tert Johnson, Philadelphia Open champ and one of 13 players to better or equal par. Needing two more puts than Snead, Johnson hung up a neat 65 to match the course record set two days previously in practice by Jimmy Demaret of Norton, Conn., and Gene Kunes, Pennsylvania Open titleholder.

Former National Open king Billy Burke pulled up third with 67 while Tony Penna, Dayton, O., out the par-breaking contingent were Horton Smith, Pinehurst, N. C., Ky Lafoon and Harry Cooper, Chicago and Jack Patroni, Manchester, Vt., all with 69.

Frank Allan, Pittston, Pa., led the amateurs, matching the score card with Dick Renaghan, Woodcrest, N. J., Bruce Coltart, Sea-view, N. J., Bobby Cruickshank, Richmond, Va., and Gene Sarazen, East Brookfield, Conn. National Open Champ Craig Wood dead-locked four others at 71 while Ben Hogan, the year's top money winner, came in a stroke behind him along with Byron Nelson and Lawson Little. Amateur Titlist Bud Ward had 73 and PGA King Vic Ghezzi 75.

On a majority of these occasions the local coach has been the one to laugh following the sport encounter. So it is with past experience that rival coaches already have ticketed Kingston as a team to watch this fall.

Despite the fact that only two regulars have returned for varsity work, Coach Tommy Weems has a good looking squad. Possibly all not full-time athletes but ones with plenty of pep and endurance. The season may roll on to a very disastrous finish. Again it may fool the so-called experts.

Just four more days of stiff training are left before the lid of the 1941 football season is taken off. In these few remaining days the squad members will get one thing straight. There will be hard work each day for every player who has any expectations of going a long way with the local grid team.

It takes more than six million dollars worth of thermometers—household, industrial, and clinical—to fill America's needs annually. Census of Manufactures reports reveal.

Duquesne, the only team in the Pittsburgh area that hasn't been de-emphasized, plays Waynesburg.

Western Division
Farther west, where the big teams won't swing into action for another week or two, the principal games are Cincinnati vs. Transylvania, Hardin-Simmons vs. Texas Wesleyan, Texas Tech vs. Abilene Christian and Portland vs. Hawaii.

Off to a head start last night, The Citadel, a Southern Conference club, walloped High Point, 450-0; Drake, of the Missouri Valley Conference, beat St. Ambrose, 21-6; Washburn, from the same log, whipped College of Emporia, 26-0. Two Ohio schools, Xavier and Dayton, rolled up scores of 63-6 against Georgetown of Kentucky and 62-0 against Hillsdale.

A Laughing Matter

Guy Lombardo's Favorite Story

A gentleman of distinguished bearing and demeanor stopped at a catering establishment on New York's Park Avenue. "I want to order a cake," he said, "but this is somewhat of an unusual order. I would like this cake baked in shape of an 'S'. Price is no object, but I do insist that the cake be 'S' shaped."

The gentleman left his card and promised to return in two days. The caterer ordered a special "S" mold from a tinsmith and the cake was baked.

Two days later, the gentleman returned and the cake was shown to him. "I'm terribly sorry," he murmured "but you baked a round 'S'. I wanted a cake in the form of a block 'S'."

The clerk apologized and asked him to return within two days. In the meantime a block "S" mold was made and the cake baked.

"This cake is just what I wanted," the customer reported on the next visit "except that you left the little curlie off the bottom of the 'S'. Will you please rectify it?"

Again with dozens of apologies, the caterer returned with a block "S" with a curlie.

The cake was baked, and with bated breath, the caterer awaited the customer's return. The cake was shown to him and he examined it minutely. "This," he said, "is absolutely perfect. This is just what I wanted."

"Thank you so much sir," beamed the clerk. "And now, where shall we send it?"

"Send it anywhere. I'll eat it here!"

County Committee Of G. O. P. to Meet

Officers Will Be Named; Democrats Also Slated to Hold Session

The regular organization meeting of the Republican County Central Committee for the purpose of election of county chairman, vice-chairman, secretary and treasurer will be held at the court house Monday evening at 8 o'clock.

County Committeemen elected at the recent primary election will be in attendance.

The county committee will this year face the task of naming a successor to Philip Elting who served as county chairman of the Ulster County Republican party from 1904 until his death this summer. This honor will undoubtedly go to Roscoe V. Elsworth of the town of Esopus, present county attorney and for several years supervisor from the town of Esopus. The vice-chairman of the Republican Committee is Dr. Alice Divine of Ellenville, who, it is expected, again will be the choice of the committeemen. James A. Simpson, former county clerk and clerk of the Board of Supervisors and a former supervisor from Shandaken is secretary of the committee while C. K. Loughran, also a former county clerk and at present clerk of the Surrogate's Court, is treasurer.

The Democratic County Committee is scheduled to hold its meeting at the court house Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock. There have been reports that Judge Bernard A. Culloton will be replaced as county chairman but "organization" delegates deny this and claim he will be re-elected. H. M. DuBois is vice-chairman, H. M. Finger of Saugerties is secretary and William Edelmuth, Democratic candidate for mayor of Kingston, is the treasurer.

Whether Mr. Edelmuth will succeed himself in view of his candidacy for mayor apparently has not been determined yet.

To Hold Hobby Show

The Dutch Reformed Church of Saugerties will hold its third annual hobby show October 2 from 2 p. m. to 10 p. m. and October 3 from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m. The display will include various types of handicraft, collections of glassware, old Bibles, albums, old china, prints, bottles, stamps, buttons and many other items. An interesting collection is that of the 265 old American dolls to be exhibited by Mrs. Ivaell Diaz.

Rummage Sale

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Trinity Lutheran Church will hold a rummage sale the week of September 27, at 672 Broadway.

Dodgers Are Fined

New York, Sept. 20 (AP)—President Ford Frick of the National League today fined five members of the Brooklyn Dodgers $25 each for the use of "vile and profane" language in an argument with umpire George Magerkurth under the stands at Pittsburgh. The fines, payable in five days, were levied against Whitlow Wyatt, Joe Medwick, Dolph Camilli, Pete Coscarart and Herman Franks, after Frick had received the report of umpire-in-chief Bill Klem. Klem was in Philadelphia yesterday investigating the rumpus.

made within the time specified by law and that since the road was now "open" to traffic, the respondent held that the relief sought by petitioners should be denied. Respondent further contended that the moving papers were inadequate and failed to show facts sufficient to show that the road had become a town road through use in the meaning of the law.

Briefs were submitted and Justice Schirick has now denied the application of petitioners to direct the road be opened and maintained as a part of the town road system.

Objections Made

The respondent attacked the proceeding and held that a mandamus proceeding was not the proper method of bringing the issue to trial. Objections in point of law were made by Messrs. LeFever and Elwyn and they asked for a dismissal of the proceeding as a matter of law. Contending that the application had not been

Move to Transfer Highway to Town System Is Denied

Justice Schirick Gives His Decision on Williams Family Application After Hearings

Justice Harry E. Schirick has denied the application of Walter Williams and Fannie Williams, operators of Williams Lake in the town of Rosendale, for an order directing the town superintendent, Alfred Trandle, to open and maintain the roadway leading from the Binnewater Four Corners to the lake resort. This question of whether the road is a public right of way and therefore should be maintained by the town of Rosendale as a part of the town highway system or whether it is a private roadway and should be privately maintained, has had numerous hearings in the courts.

The matter has been before the town board of the town of Rosendale on numerous occasions and has been one of the big topics of discussion in the town of Rosendale for some time. Augustus Shufeldt appeared for the petitioners and Lloyd R. LeFever with Hugh R. Elwyn appeared for the town superintendent of highways of the town of Rosendale against whom the action was instituted.

The proceeding is dismissed by Justice Schirick under the statute of limitations since the proceeding was not brought within the time prescribed by law after the demand to open the road had been made. Justice Schirick holds in a memorandum that it appears that 21 months had elapsed since the first demand and refusal to open the road was made and the date of institution of the court proceedings. The law contains a four-month statute of limitations.

After preliminary skirmishes before the town board of the town of Rosendale in which requests for maintenance of the road were made, in April of this year, Walter and Fannie Williams, owners of the Williams Lake resort property, brought a mandamus action at a special term of Supreme Court against Town Superintendent of Highways Alfred Trandle, asking for a direction by the court house Monday evening at 8 o'clock.
